

LOST IN TRANSLATION

About the practice

Developing business, finding new foreign partners and building business relations with them are impossible without documents translated correctly into a foreign language and drawn up properly.

There are easy, routine tasks that any specialist who knows a foreign language can complete on their own. But when it comes to translating legal documents it is very important not to overlook subtle nuances, choose the terms correctly, stress certain points and prevent any distortion, inaccuracies and ambiguities.

It's safer to entrust important documents to professional and experienced legal translators, then the outcome will be certain.

Pepeliaev Group employs qualified translators and editors who specialise in the translation of legal, tax and financial documents, as well as documents relating to the securities market, accounting, construction and information technologies. Our translators have an outstanding command of legal terminology and know very well the fine differences among many countries' legal systems.

The practice's services and projects

Editing of English texts by an editor who is a native speaker

- Edited the replies of Pepeliaev Group's lawyers in English to a very detailed questionnaire of the client, a major international bank, regarding the legal regime in Russia for the outsourcing of cloud storage services in compliance with the bank's international policy on information technologies.
- Edited the English version of a lengthy agreement setting out the conditions for a foreign shareholder to withdraw from the company of our client, a Russian producer of foods from frozen potatoes, and for the possibility for the same shareholder to return as a member of our client's company in the future.
- Edited the English text of an expert opinion by a senior partner of Pepeliaev Group to be used in a court case to which a major international company was a party in the High Court of England and Wales. The case concerned the legal and tax aspects of the relevant contractual relationships in connection with the affreightment of vessels.
- Edited a memorandum in English with a thorough analysis of how the landlord fulfilled its obligations under a lease agreement for premises towards our client, an international pharmaceutical company. The issue related to the obligation of the landlord to ensure the provision of utility services in accordance with the temperature requirements for the client to use the premises.
- Edited a chapter dedicated to mergers and acquisitions prepared by Pepeliaev Group's lawyers in English for the IBFD's overview of international taxation issues. Edited the subsequent updates of the chapter.

The practice's services and projects

Arranging for translations to/from other foreign languages through partner agencies and independent outsource translators

- Arranged for the translation of an agreement from Russian into Japanese. The translation was prepared for a Russian company engaged in a logistics system of supplies of goods into the territory of the Customs Union. To prepare the translation, we managed to find a professional translator and specialist in the Russian language who lives in Japan, teaches at a university and is engaged in legal translations.
- Arranged for the translation of a large volume of corporate documents from Chinese into Russian through a translation agency. The translation was prepared for a company which is a leading manufacturer of road safety systems.
- Arranged for the urgent translation from German into Russian of several packages of documents to close a transaction of a leading German manufacturer of cosmetics and perfumery.
- Arranged for the translation from Greek into Russian of the foundation agreement and charter of a Cyprus company for restructuring purposes. The translation was prepared by a smaller 'boutique' translation agency, which ensured work of a high quality.

Checking of translations into Russian completed by third-party translators

- Proofread and edited the Russian translation of a large legal opinion within a tight schedule. We performed the proofreading at the request of our client, a Russian state oil and gas company of strategic importance.
- Proofread and edited the translation of several policies for a New Zealand company specialising in the development, manufacturing and sale of equipment and accessories for respiratory therapy.

The practice's services and projects

Arranging for the translator's signature and copies of a document to be certified by a notary

- Arranged for a notary to certify a large package of translations from Spanish necessary for our client to set up a representative office in Russia. We were commissioned by a major Spanish holding company mainly pursuing agricultural activities.
- From time to time, arranged for the notarisation of translations of corporate documents from English and French for the global leading manufacturer of spectacle lenses and optical equipment.
- From time to time, arranged for the notarisation of translations of various corporate documents from English and Dutch for a leading US company producing foods.

Consecutive Russian — English interpretation during business meetings and conferences

- Interpreted for the representative of the client at a court hearing dedicated to the consideration of an appeal of a leasing company which is a part of a major international holding.
- Interpreted the presentations of foreign speakers dedicated to tax issues at annual tax conferences organised by Pepeliaev Group.
- Interpreted at the tax inspectorate during the interrogation of the General Director of the client's company, the largest producer of animal feed.
- Interpreted for the top management of the leading international manufacturer of tobacco products within the framework of a criminal case initiated against several officers of the company in connection with an alleged underpayment of a large amount of taxes.
