

CRIMINAL LAW DEFENCE OF BUSINESS

About the practice

The broad horizons of our attorneys in Russian criminal law, allied with their extensive practical experience, allow them to successfully solve complex and non-standard problems when we represent and defend the shareholders, executives and employees of clients in the context of a criminal trial (avoiding or minimising any risk of criminal liability).

Pepeliaev Group's lawyers help clients in solving specific business tasks:

to prevent the destruction of a business as a result of criminal prosecution, in particular when investigative bodies have used prohibited methods of investigation, possible abusive practices, and illegal and excessive coercion;

to prevent competitors from using criminal procedure to gain access to the client's confidential information;

to maintain a business-friendly environment among the staff members during state control and coercive procedures, to minimise the risks of panic among the staff caused by these procedures;

to prevent additional "extra-procedural" costs from growing owing to intimidation, threats and blackmail, which some malevolent officials use.

Our services

Manufacturer of consumer goods

Instructed by a major international retailer and manufacturer of household goods with an extensive network of stores in Russia, we handled a number of criminal cases in which company employees were held liable for thefts of company property. The company primarily regarded the fact that former employees were held liable as being a deterrent to those still employed within the company. All of the criminal cases went to court, with the guilty parties punished by imprisonment by virtue of article 73 (conditional conviction) of the Russian Criminal Code being applied. Civil lawsuits were upheld in full.

Major logistics company

Appealed to the state prosecutor's office against searches being conducted in the office of our client, a major logistics company. During such searches, financial and business documents of the company and computers were seized, while employees were given demands to appear to answer questions. As a result of the appeal, a response was received from the prosecutor's office according to which it was established that police employees committed violations when they carried out the searches. The audits in relation to the company within the scope of the law "On searches and investigative activity" were terminated, the documents and computers were returned, and the employees were not interrogated.

Our services

Well-known logistics company

We devised a legal position in relation to a criminal case brought against a client (a major international logistics company) based on the files from a tax audit that had been conducted. We drafted an appeal to the state prosecutor and the court against the resolution to bring criminal charges. Nonetheless the court decided to reject the appeal, on the grounds that the person who sanctioned charges being brought was unaware that the client had made a significant overpayment of tax. However, the investigator himself, a week after the court heard the appeal, issued a resolution discontinuing the criminal case owing to the lack of a crime.

International retailer

Drafted a legal opinion regarding the criminal law risks in relation to a creditor sending a complaint to law enforcement bodies concerning executives of the Client committing fraud by way of embezzling funds obtained under a loan agreement. After reviewing the facts of the case and the documents, we concluded that there was no risk of a criminal prosecution. Later, after a preliminary examination was conducted in respect of our client, the decision was taken not to open a criminal investigation into fraud. This was in line with our forecast.

Holding structure producing foodstuffs

We devised a legal position and provided support in the context of a preliminary investigation conducted regarding executives of our client, a major food producing concern. The criminal case was brought in relation to the alleged carrying on of unlawful business activity by failing to have a licence when a licence was required. The preliminary investigation lasted for a year before a rare procedural decision was handed down: the head of the investigative body issued a resolution cancelling the investigator's decision to bring criminal charges. This resolution actually acknowledged the fact that the criminal case was originally launched unlawfully and with no justification.

Major manufacturer of industrial goods

Advised a major manufacturer of industrial goods as to company employees' compliance with the requirements of Russian anti-bribery legislation in the commercial sector. We also drafted internal guidelines for relationships with contracting parties in order to prevent cases of commercial bribery

Private individual

We appealed to the Moscow City Court's Judicial Panel for Criminal Cases against the sentence of the City of Moscow's Kuntsevo District Court. Our client, a private individual, had been sentenced to five years' imprisonment for committing a crime contemplated by article 159(4) of the Criminal Code (fraud in a particularly large amount, perpetrated by an organised group). The Judicial Panel agreed with the arguments in the appeal, cancelling the sentence of the first instance court and terminating the criminal proceedings because our client's actions did not constitute a criminal offence (article 24(1)(2) of the Criminal Procedure Code).
