Advising on general issues of employment and migration law

Providing representation before the State Labour Inspectorate and the Prosecutor's Office

Monitoring measures of support for industry as well as industry and regional agreements

Supporting employers in settling labour disputes

Developing and implementing compensatory and incentive programmes

Optimising and restructuring staff, supporting staff redundancy and large-scale lay-off procedures

Offering support for migration issues

Projects: general matters

Provided legal support in resolving current issues

For 7 years, Pepeliaev Group's lawyers assisted a Swiss manufacturer of chocolate and confectionery in resolving current employment law issues. The project involved such issues as guarantees for employees, remuneration and benefits, incentives, hiring and dismissal of personnel, etc. The implementation of this project required, in addition to a high level of expertise in employment law, a profound understanding of the client's operations and business needs.

Reviewing the regulation of increased salary in 5 states

Pepeliaev Group's lawyers promptly prepared for the client an analysis of the regulatory requirements of foreign legislation (5 states) for conditions where there was increased salary for employees engaged in the development and operation of hydrocarbon-containing deposits, as well as employees working in adverse climatic zones.

This project confirms that our specialists can successfully work to tight deadlines when providing legal services to clients in various jurisdictions.

Projects: optimising and restructuring staff

Advised a client on dealings with trade unions

Our specialists assisted the client in a staff optimisation procedure during which the employees established two trade unions to protect themselves from staff redundancy. The project involved protecting the company from hostile actions of the trade unions. As a result the company managed to successfully implement its plans, since no claims were filed.

The success of our team was partially based on an in-depth analysis of the structure of the trade union and identifying discrepancies, which significantly weakened the position of the professional association of employees and gave the company a decisive advantage in holding negotiations.

Provided support in employment issues as part of the reorganisation of a company

Pepeliaev Group's lawyers advised the client on employment aspects of the company's reorganisation. The client planned for one company to absorb another company. This process required the levels of remuneration and benefits to be brought into line. We also needed to perform a thorough review of issues relating to relationships with the trade union. The project involved an in-depth analysis of all the elements of remuneration and benefits in two companies (the plant and administration) located in different regions as well as searching for efficient solutions so that the majority of compensations and payments could be left unchanged and discrimination could thus be avoided. Our team helped the client to implement the project successfully.

Projects: employment disputes

Successfully provided legal support in a case in a state commercial court

Our lawyers won a difficult case in a state commercial court against the Russian Social Insurance Fund. The main aspects of the case related to issues of labour law and the recognition of civil law relationships as de facto labour relationships. This is a unique case in our practice, since we participated in judicial procedures different from those we encounter in ordinary practice (the procedure of state commercial courts is very different from the procedure of courts of general jurisdiction that is applicable to labour disputes).

This dispute has become extremely important and has set a precedent for the client, since it widely uses in practice such legal structures that could be reclassified as employment relationships.

Settled a conflict with an employee enjoying specific legal protection

Our specialists provided legal support to the client in dealing with an employee with whom it was in conflict and who had been reinstated by the court to his former position. The employee, who belonged to a protected category, was demonstrating bad-faith conduct and acting with hostility towards the employer. Pepeliaev Group's team successfully defended the employer when the State Labour Inspectorate conducted its audit following the employee's application as well as in court disputes. Our lawyers helped the client to terminate the conflict and the employee left the company in an amicable way. The case has become a successful precedent for the client.

Projects: disciplinary and financial liability of employees

Provided legal support in a project to prevent theft

Our lawyers provided support for a project that involved identifying cases when employees in the regions had stolen the company's property. Pepeliaev Group's team was engaged to carry out an internal investigation and to take measures to prevent bad-faith actions. The task was to dismiss the employees who were involved in the violations identified of the accounting procedure for material assets. Work on this project covered a wide a range of issues not only of employment law, but also criminal law, as well as finding an emergency solution for the existing situation that became unique for the client.

Provided support in dismissing an employee on grounds of misconduct

The lawyers of the employment practice provided comprehensive support to the client (a subsidiary of a petrochemical concern) with respect to dismissing an employee on grounds of misconduct. The employee contested the dismissal in courts of two instances, which confirmed that the relationship had been lawfully terminated. The employee's claims were dismissed in full. We provided the client with comprehensive support with respect to the dismissal, which involved a legal analysis together with technical collection of evidence.

Projects: hr audit and occupational safety

Comprehensive HR audit

Our lawyers conducted an audit of all of the client's basic HR documents with a view to ensuring complete compliance with regulatory requirements and that the client was ready for an audit by the labour inspectorate.

Our team not only analysed all of the documents and internal labour policies and provided recommendations regarding the defects identified, but also advised the client with respect to the options for eliminating the defects and to implementing improvements. In addition, we developed the relevant wordings to be included in documents. The audit conducted and subsequent support required us to understand the client's business processes, which are closely connected with issues of transportation, organising drivers' work, etc. Legal support was required not only in ensuring occupational safety, but also with respect to complete financial liability of employees.

Projects: foreign employees

Structured relationships with all categories of employees, including foreign employees

Pepeliaev Group's lawyers supported the entry onto the market of a major Chinese manufacturer of video surveillance systems. In the project, our team actively advised the client, provided support in establishing and registering a Russian legal entity and structuring relationships with all categories of employees, including Russian and foreign employees who were Chinese nationals. The project was complicated because we needed to take into account both specific aspects of the Chinese company and stringent requirements of Russian migration legislation.

Documenting relationships with Russian and foreign employees

The specialists of Pepeliaev Group's employment and migration law practice helped the client (a major Chinese manufacturer of climate control and household equipment) to register its Russian subsidiary and structure relationships with Russian and foreign employees. Our lawyers also developed the necessary HR documents, which included adjusting to Russian requirements the payroll system and remunerations for Russian senior management based on the scheme the client applies.

Anna Berlina

Partner

a.berlina@pgplaw.ru

Anna has over 17 years of experience in providing legal support with respect to the widest range of employment law issues. She represents clients in court when employment disputes are examined as well as before the State Labour Inspectorate and the Prosecutor's Office. Anna provides support when employees are dismissed, including in the event of large-scale lay-offs, as well in dealing with trade unions.

In addition, she advises on issues that involve: granting guarantees and compensations (protecting employees from currency risks, incentive programmes, etc.), sending employees to work in other countries, as well as on other employment law issues. Anna also provides support to clients in drafting HR documents, including employment agreements, policies, etc.

WHAT THEY SAY

Respondents invariably emphasise Anna's attention to detail and her focus on the outcome. One of her clients also describes how she is as a lawyer in practice: "she is always available and ready to help". (Chambers Europe, 2020).
